On motion, a committee of one from each State was appointed to nominate new boards. There was a somewhat spicy discussion on the question of allowing committees to retire during the hour for devotional exer-

The special order of the day, FOREIGN MISSIONS, was then taken up. Rev. T. T. Eaton offered a resolution to the effect that the success of the Foreign little has been done at the North. He urged Mission Board during the past year should the completion of the fund, and the buildstimulate and encourage to yet greater zeal ing of the chapel as soon as possible.

Rev. Dr. J. C. Hiden, of Greenville, S. C., was then called out, and made a compact, incisive, telling speech. He said that if any outsider wanted to know the use of the expenditure of so much time, labor, and money in the foreign mission work the answer was at hand. If one wanted to know what good had been accomplished potent results could be pointed out. Why, even as young a man as himself remembered the witicism of the brilliant John under discussion, proposed in the Richmond The substitute of Mr. Eaton to Dr. Mont-Examiner the name of a certain distin- gomery's resolution was put to the house guished Virginia politician, and urged that and adopted. he be sent on the ground that he was so lean | The Chair then proceeded with the call

He insisted that Christ is the grand want of the heathen, and that they will surely perish unless we send them the gospel. He vividly pictured the advances made by many heathen nations in literature, science, gent would be held to a fearful accountability for forgetting God. And if any argue that the heathen are so besotted and deanswer is that we have the same natures to overcome in our work at home-that each one of us has at least one heathen to fighthimself.

WHAT FOREIGN MISSIONS HAVE DONE. He eloquently and earnestly argued that foreign missions has done everything for us; that our ancestors were heathen; and that we would be heathen to-day had not somebody carried the gospel to our forefathers. Dr. Hiden's address was listened to with deep interest, and seemed to produce a profound impression. The Convention then rose and sung

"Did Christ o'er sinners weep?" Rev. Dr. J. W. M. Williams, of Baltimore, next took the stand. He made a characteristic speech, in which he earnestly insisted that more of the missionary spirit is the great need of the Convention, defined what that spirit is, and told how it should be cultivated.

DR. CURRY'S REMARKS. Rev. Dr. Curry next addressed the Convention. He said that while he should speak more particularly of our Italian mission, as he had recently had the privilege of seeing the work J. B. Jansen, North Carolina; J. B. Tomkins, Floridia.

He stated that Dr. Taylor preaches not only fluently in Italian, but that he is an even better preacher in Italian than in English, as he spoke in a more animated and impassioned style.

A HARD STRUGGLE TO OVERCOME ROMANISM. After giving this decidedly encouraging sketch of the mission he warned the Convention not to be too sanguine of large imto overcome Romanism, which has been incorporated into the very life of the people, the frosts of winter, or else forego the and has been for centuries a corroding canker, eating out the public consience and emasculating everything like spiritual life. He said that those who had only seen Romanism in this country, modified by our free institutions or restraining itself from policy, could form no conception of what it and its blighting influences are in Europe. But the sun of Rigtheousness can dissipate the darkness of Asia, Africa, and even that of Rome; for as all of this degradation and darkness are the product of sin-the same sin that is in our hearts and our countryand He can raise the fallen. vote intelligently. Rev. Dr. Tupper said that the Board had maturely considered this whole question, and regarded a journal of their own as a necessity. He gave several potent reasons for the revival of the paper, and insisted that even if it could not be published without a considerable outlay it would be a cheap agency. The question was further discussed by Perdue, councilman from the Second Ward, has caused to be posted a card in which he says: "I have neither the inclination, disposition, nor ambition, to wear the honors longer, yet if the citizens of this ward insist upon my return, and reëlect me, I would not feel at liberty to refuse. I cannot consent to contribute by word or means aid to secure my own election,"

The Contested-Election Case .- In the Ambers contested-election case the appeal was docketed on yesterday, and after argument upon the question whether Mr. Fitzpatrick. not being a party to the record, had the right to be represented by counsel in the ease, the Court decided that he was so entitled-this being a proceeding in the behalf of the public and not merely a contest between two candidates-and it appearing from this that other citizens of the county had also employed the same counsel in the case. Mr. Samuel D. Davis was thereupon admitted to appear as counsel for Mr. Fitzpatrick and others, and the appeal will be decided on its merits some time during the term.

How to Vote .- A party presenting himself at the polls to vote will select a card from those in the hands of the ticketholders, upon which is printed the name of the party for whom he desires to vote for Mayor, and place it in an envelope which will be handed him. Having picked his man for that office he will proceed the same way until he has a card for every candidate for whom he desires to vote. The envelope he will then hand to the commissioner, who will place it in the ballot-box.
